

Webinar

“People and Planet 2.0 – Can the Covid-19 tragedy be a historic reset?”

Welcome!

Bonn, 31 March 2020

2 - 3.30 pm CET

“No one can now rejoice in a positive climate effect, because the price to be paid for it is incredibly high - because of the collapse of economic output, the personal and social costs and, above all, because of the human suffering caused by the pandemic. Avoiding additional tons of CO2 could not be more expensive! On the other hand, it makes sense to start thinking now about what lessons we can learn from this dramatic development for dealing with the climate crisis.”

(Hans Joachim Schellnhuber)

Speakers

Kuki Rokhum, Head of Training and Mobilization, Evangelical Fellowship of India Commission on Relief (EFICOR)

Katharine Hayhoe, Climate Scientist and Climate Ambassador of the World Evangelical Alliance

Dave Bookless, Director for Theology, A Rocha International

Ben Niblett, Coordinator of Renew our World, Tearfund

Chris Elisara, Director, WEA Creation Care Task Force

Matthias Boehning, Director, WEA Sustainability Center

The webinar wrestles with three key questions:

- 1. Stepping back – What can we learn about humanity, our societies, and our planet from this crisis?
- 2. Stepping out – In which way does the current COVID-19 crisis provide a historic chance to rethink and redo the “People and Planet partnership”?
- 3. Stepping up – How can people of faith be inspiring voices of hope and helpful hands of good these days, spreading the positive virus of transformation globally?

1. Stepping back – What can we learn about humanity, our societies, and our planet from this crisis?

2. Stepping out – In which way does the current COVID-19 crisis provide a historic chance to rethink and redo the “People and Planet partnership”?

3. Stepping up – How can people of faith be inspiring voices of hope and helpful hands of good these days, spreading the positive virus of transformation globally?